As the impacts of climate change are being felt more acutely, it is more important than ever to better understand likely future impacts and, more importantly, what we can do as individuals and local communities to mitigate and adapt.

Please come along to discuss key issues with a panel of experts working on climate related issues in different professional spheres and meet like-minded people in your local community.

PANELLISTS:

Ariella Helfgott

Ariella lives in Marino and is the Director of Strategic Foresight in the Department of the Premier and Cabinet. She has expertise in scenario analysis, strategic thinking and resilience and has applied this while working for the World Energy Council, the University of Oxford and the Australian Department of Defence, among others.

Nina Keath

Nina is responsible for climate resilience at City of Onkaparinga. Her early career at Monash Uni was spent researching the ingredients required for transitioning towards more sustainable practices. Since returning to SA, she has relished the opportunity to apply social theory and watch it work in the real world.

Holger Maier

Holger lives in Seacliff and is a Professor of Environmental Engineering at the University of Adelaide. He teaches courses and works with industry and government on climate impact modelling, natural hazard risk management, the renewable energy transition and smart stormwater systems.
